

Lesson 114

fault [fɔ:lt]
 faulty ['fɔ:lti]
 faultless ['fɔ:ltləs]

Should you say sorry when
 something is your fault?

Yes, you should say sorry when
 something is your fault.

Whose fault is it if a student fails
 an exam?

It's usually the student's fault if he or she fails an exam.

Is it easier to see somebody else's
 faults than your own?
 Why?

Yes, it's easier to see somebody else's
faults than your own.
 Because we like to think we have no faults.

Do you return things to the shop
 when they're faulty?
 Why?

Yes, I return things to the shop when they're faulty.
 Because they should be faultless.

Can you already speak faultless
 English?
 Why not?

No, I can't speak faultless English yet.
 Because I still make some mistakes.

opportunity [ɒpə'tju:nəti]
 great [greɪt]

Is this course a great opportunity
 to learn spoken English?

Yes, this course is a great opportunity
 to learn spoken English.

Is it a good idea to speak English
 at every opportunity?

Yes, it's a good idea to speak English
 at every opportunity.

Do we have a lot of job opportunities
 in this town?

Yes, we have a lot of job opportunities
 in this town.
 or: No, we don't have a lot of job ...

Do you agree that a trip to Brazil
 would be a great holiday?

Yes, I agree that a trip to Brazil would be a great holiday.

Why?
 Why not?

or: No, I don't agree that a trip ...
 Because Brazil is an interesting country.
 Because I think it is too hot in Brazil.